As this week's feels-like temperatures are projected to approach 100 degrees, we've once again partnered with the McHenry County Emergency Management Agency to provide residents with a list of cooling centers available throughout McHenry County. Visit bit.ly/ema-seasonal-awareness to stay up-to-date on available cooling centers.

MCHENRY COUNTY COOLING CENTERS

The National Weather Service is forecasting hot and humid conditions this week (6/17-6/22). Monday (6/17) is anticipated to be the hottest day, featuring heat indices approaching 105°F and overnight lows in the mid to upper 70s. If spending time outdoors, please ensure you stay hydrated, wear light clothing, and take breaks in shaded areas or indoors.
